LATERAN BASILICA

On November 9th, we celebrate the feast of the dedication of the Lateran Basilica in Rome, the Pope's cathedral. The Lateran Basilica is also considered the mother of all churches, because in the year 313 AD, Constantine gave a basilica to the Pope, and within it Christians gathered, giving rise to the concept of "church." At the time, Constantine built the church at the entrance of Rome so that pilgrims arriving would know that it was a Christian city. As the cathedral of the diocese of Rome, it houses the papal throne, which places it above all other churches in the world. When Jesus died, the veil of the temple was torn. Now we can praise and thank God; we have free access to the intimacy of the church courtyards to pray and offer the Father a pleasing sacrifice. In other words, all who have been baptized are living temples of the Church - the Church that nourishes us in the Eucharist with the body and blood of Jesus. This Basilica was dedicated to Saint John the Evangelist and Saint John the Baptist, because both were announcers of the kingdom of God, and their relics are also housed there. The two-story portico on the main facade of the Basilica is the place where the Pope gives his blessing every Holy Thursday. On the upper part, there are statues of Christ and the saints sculpted during the 18th century.

Inside, the Basilica features grand decoration from ceiling to floor. Saint Helena made a point of including images of the 12 apostles of Christ, because thanks to them, evangelization and the faith reached the city of Rome. Next to the Lateran Basilica stands a large building that served as the residence of the popes for more than fifteen hundred years. In front of the Basilica, a monument of Saint Francis of Assisi and his brothers was built to commemorate the place where Pope Innocent III approved the constitutions of Saint Francis of Assisi. To conclude, near the Basilica there is a church containing the Holy Stairs, which Jesus Christ climbed to be judged on Good Friday. Saint Helena brought this staircase from Pontius Pilate's palace to the city of Rome.

BASÍLICA DE LATRÃO

A Archibasílica de São João de Latrão (conhecida em italiano como San Giovanni in Laterano) é a catedral da Diocese de Roma e a sede oficial do Bispo de Roma, que é o Papa. Por esse motivo, carrega o título honorífico de "Mãe e Cabeça de todas as igrejas de Roma e do Mundo" (Omnium urbis et orbis ecclesiarum mater et caput), superando até mesmo a Basílica de São Pedro em dignidade eclesiástica.
